In this course, we will examine the nature of the news media, and how media institutions shape the way citizens understand politics. We will begin by considering the routines and procedures of the news media, including the history of media in the United States and how the media decide what to cover. Next, we will consider the interaction of politicians and the news media, considering candidate media strategies during campaigns and how politicians use the media to achieve policy goals while governing. Finally, we will consider patterns of political communication, and how citizens understand and interpret the stories they see in the news. Here, we will consider media effects such as priming and framing as well as the use of new media.

d2l is your friend

I will regularly update class information on the website for the class at learn.colorado.edu. This syllabus will be posted there, as well as links to assignments and other exciting material.

reading material

- A set of journal articles and book chapters, which can be linked to from the course website. (In some cases, you may be blocked from accessing online journals from off-campus computers. See information from the University Library for remote access from off-site: ucblibraries.colorado.edu/research/remote.htm)

expectations

You are encouraged to be an active participant in class. Please feel free to raise questions at any point during class, including matters of clarification, theoretical points, or topics to address in class discussion. You should also keep in touch by e-mail or by visiting office hours if you have any questions about course expectations or the material covered in class.

You are also expected to maintain proper classroom etiquette. This includes respecting the opinions of others even if you disagree, not talking out of turn, putting away newspapers and crossword puzzles during lecture, turning off cell phones before class, and not disrupting the class if arriving late.
requirements

In addition to the readings, you will be responsible for the following:

PARTICIPATION, SHORT ASSIGNMENTS, AND QUIZZES (worth 25% of your final grade)
Because class attendance is an important prerequisite for participating in discussions and in-class activities, attendance will be taken each class session. Frequent absences will lower your participation grade. We will also have several in-class activities that contribute to this portion of your grade, and many weeks we will have short quizzes on the readings. We will have a few short homework assignments as well.

TWO PAPERS (each worth 15% of your final grade)
For each of the three units we cover in class, there will be two paper topics provided. Over the course of the semester, you need to write papers on two of these six topics. Paper guidelines will be detailed in separate handouts.

THREE EXAMS (each worth 15% of your final grade)
There will be two midterm exams and a final exam.

special accommodations

If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit to me a letter from Disability Services in a timely manner so that your needs may be addressed. You can contact the Disability Services office for more information at www.colorado.edu/disabilityservices.

some important comments on academic integrity

- Plagiarism and other academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. If you are not familiar with the rules of citing sources in written work or what constitutes plagiarism, you should contact me or refer to the University Honor Code at honorcode.colorado.edu. Additional information about avoiding plagiarism, citation style, and writing in political science is also posted on the course website. Academic dishonesty will result in an F in the course and referral to the Honor Council for additional non-academic sanctions.
- All papers are expected to be original work, not previously or simultaneously handed in for credit in another course (unless prior approval of all instructors involved is obtained).
